REMEMBRANCE

Of those who laid down their lives, that we might live

There are Stars that go out in the darkness.
But their silvery light shineth on.
There are Roses whose fragrance still lingers,
Though their blossoms are faded and gone.
There are Hearts that were brave and had courage,
Though no longer their life current flows.
But their goodness lives on with the living,
Like the Soul of the Star and the Rose.

Prairie Winters Too Much For Praying Mantids

OTTAWA — Government agricultural scientists are finding that the six-legged praying mantis, although good at his work, is not the real answer to their prayers.

The greenish carnivorous insect was put to work eating grasshoppers that have been devouring Canadian agricultural growth. However, the mantis, who looks like a grasshopper but is about twice the size, has difficulty surviving the Canadian climate.

A. B. Baird, director of the agriculture department's biological section, said Wednesday tests are being made at Belleville, Ont., to see whether the mantis, who simply cannot survive the prairie winter, can live in southern Ontario and the Maritimes.

Funny and Otherwise

"This knot in my handkerchief? Oh, that's to remind me to try and get something for my wife."

"Really old, boy? How much do you want for her?"

Mechanic—The horn on your car must be broken.

Motorist—No, it's just indifferent.

Mechanic—What do you mean?

Motorist—It just doesn't give a hoot.

"What's the matter with Ted?"

"Too conceited. The other day he bought a book called 'What Two Million Women Want,' just to see if they spelled his name right."

Husband and wife were having words. At last the husband snapped: "You've never done anything without boasting about it."

"Oh, yes, I have," replied the wife.

"And what?" sneered the husband.

"I married you," came the acid reply.

"Old George is pretty mean—and I keep telling him he can't take it with him when he dies."

"From what I know of George, if he finds he can't take it with him he won't go."

"Ah," boomed the vicar genially, "how pleasant to see you again! And is that your most charming wife?"

"This," said his former curate reprovingly, "is my only wife."

Tragedian: "My parents tried hard to keep me from becoming an actor."

Comedian: "I congratulate them on their success!" 1904

92 Saskatchewan Motorists Lose Drivers' Licences

REGINA.—Ninety-two driver's licences were revoked or suspended during September by the Saskatchewan highway traffic board, J. A. Christie chairman said in a bureau of publications release.

Revocation or suspension because of convictions for reckless or dangerous driving accounted for 35 of last month's total, with convictions for driving while intoxicated numbering 13.

The September figure, said Mr. Christie, although high, was lower than the July total of 98 and the figure for August, 106.

Farm Costs Double That Of 1935-99

OTAWA.—Canadian farm costs have risen to double the 1935-39 expenses.

The bureau of statistics reported that in August the index of farm costs had reached 201.5 against 192.3 in August, 1949. This is calculated on the basis of 100 as the 1935-39 average.

The index includes both the farmer's own living costs and the costs of the commodities and services used by him, and the bureau said had it gone up both with and without the inclusion of living costs.

In the four months up to August, there was a rise in the composite index of five points.

The upward movement between April and August, the bureau said, mainly reflected a seasonal rise in farm wage rates plus increases in farmers' living costs, building machinery, farm machinery, feed, petroleum products and hardware.

Family living costs on the farm moved up four points during the period to hit 180.7.

Cracking Down On Grain Black Market

EDMONTON.—Alberta is prepared to crack down on reported black market dealings in coarse grains.

Agriculture Minister David Ure said illegal dealings in oats, barley and rye had become prevalent in the province and had brought complaints of unfair competition from mill operators.

Mr. Ure said the province would enforce a law passed in 1949 which required that all coarse grains be marketed through the Canadian wheat board.

BANFF PICKED FOR SKI TRIALS

VANCOUVER.—For the first time, western Canada has been picked for the site of the 1952 Olympic ski trials.

Dave Spence, president of the Canadian amateur ski association, said the downhill and slalom teams trials will be held at Banff, Alta., late in March, 1951.

Athabaska Fishing To Resume Dec. 1

REGINA.—Commercial fishing will begin again on Lake Athabaska Dec. 1 after a lapse of three years, provincial fisheries branch officials said in a bureau of publications release.

Fishing operations will be carried out by McInnes Products Corp., an Edmonton firm. Reopening of commercial fishing on this lake will mean employment of up to 50 fishermen in the Athabaskan region. The winter limit is 1,000,000 lbs. of all species, while 1,500,000 can be taken during the summer.

U.S. Fighter Planes For Rivers, Man.

OTTAWA.—The first five of 100 Mustang fighter planes bought in the United States will be delivered to the R.C.A.F. shortly, the air force announced.

The first group will be used to equip a Mustang conversion unit at Rivers, Man., where Canadian pilots will be made familiar with the aircraft.

Machines delivered later will go to form a new fighter squadron of the regular R.C.A.F. at Uplands airport, Ottawa, and will be distributed among auxiliary squadrons.

Queen of Sheba One of the Many Lures For Expedition Uncovering Ancient City

By FRED J. WALKER
Central Press Canadian
Correspondent

Preliminary digging at a lost city, buried under desert sands since the time of Christ, has uncovered priceless art objects and gives promise of filling in important gaps of history.

Wendell Phillips, president of the American Foundation for the study of Man, made that announcement in San Francisco in revealing that an elaborately equipped scientific expedition soon will undertake a thorough study of the site.

The city of Timna, comprising 64 acres of stone buildings, located in the Aden protectorate, southwestern Arabia. It was sacked and burned by unknown invaders about 50 B.C.

"We are excited about the prospects," said Phillips, leader of the expedition, "as we are now down to a level where important discoveries are anticipated, dating from approximately the sixth century B.C."

"Among our important finds so far are two bronze lions, the finest art objects yet discovered in Arabia; a lovely translucent alabaster head of a young woman with painted blue eyes, dating from the second century B.C., and a solid gold necklace showing remarkable artistic workmanship."

"Timna lies on an old spice route of biblical days, believed used by the Queen of Sheba when she travelled to Jerusalem to visit Solomon."

"The name Timna appears in the Old Testament, as the name of the tribe of Horites. It was the capital of the ancient kingdom of Qataban."

Phillips said that all indications pointed to Timna as being peopled by a race of great cultural and artistic merit, possibly influenced by the Mediterranean world. He continued: "Walls of many of the buildings have beautiful inscriptions, and scholars now are studying our preliminary discoveries."

Originally seen from the air Timna was inspected by Phillips in 1949, after which he organized the first scientific expedition to explore that part of the world.

This expedition, which worked last February, March and April, employed 200 Arabs as excavators to clear away the top layer of sand and debris from the buildings and temples.

"And this preliminary work," said Phillips, "gave us hope of making discoveries in the future in excess of our wildest dreams."

Funds and equipment for the expedition were contributed by individuals and corporations interested in furthering a non-profit educational and scientific study of one of the last great unexplored regions of the world.

The Carnegie Museum of Pittsburgh was associated with the American Foundation in the expedition and will exhibit the discoveries. Among other contributing corporations were Chrysler, which supplied 18 Dodge power wagons; Shell Oil, 50,000 gallons of gasoline; U.S. Steel Corp., transportation.

The United States navy provided radio equipment and medical supplies.

In 1947, at the age of 25, he organized the University of California African expedition, the largest expedition ever to conduct scientific research in Africa.

A total of 53 scientists and technicians, including members of the United States army, navy and marine corps, covered Africa from Cairo to Cape Town and Zanzibar to the Congo.

One of the men chiefly responsible for the expedition was attorney John Francis Neylan of San Francisco, a regent of the university. He backed the youthful Phillips in the ambitious undertaking.

THERE'S A LIMIT TO HOW FAR IT WILL STRETCH

On The Side : - By - E. V. Durling

In Korea there are 104 men to every 100 women. Spinsters are a rarity. More than 99 per cent. of Korean girls become brides. The average number of children for Korean couples is seven.

Unusual Family

When there are seven or more children in a family they rarely all do well in their adult years. In most large families only two or three of the children are outstanding as adults. So it is often claimed. That claim cannot be proved by the family of Dr. Leo Z. Hayes, of Brockway, Pa. The Hayes family consisted of five girls and three boys. Six of these children became successful doctors. One was outstanding as a school teacher and the other as a registered nurse.

It Clears the Mind

When the lamas, the priests of the forbidden city of Lhasa in Tibet, are confronted by a difficult problem they stand on their heads for 20 minutes to figure it out. They say standing on the head clears the mind. I tried to stand on my head to check on this claim but nearly broke my back.

Hold That Woman

There should be more advice on how to attract a woman, how to hold a wife, etc. That's what I have repeatedly claimed, pointing out the excessive amount of "how to attract a man" and "how to hold a wife" articles. However, there still seems to be a great scarcity of advice as to how a young fellow can achieve the affection of a high-grade female and how he can hold that affection.

Backward Irishmen

Irishmen are the world's most difficult fellows to lure into matrimony. The average Irishman doesn't marry until in his thirties. If inspired to propose he insists upon a long engagement period. So the average Irish girl is in her late twenties or nearly thirties when she becomes a bride. What is true of native-born Irishmen is often true of bachelors of Irish descent.

For Feminine Drivers

Now available is a gadget for automobiles called "the parking eye". This enables the driver to see the curb far back of the car when parking. No leaning out of the window is necessary. Should be a good thing for feminine drivers. The ladies know how to park all right, but when all dressed up they are handicapped. They can't turn around far enough to park properly because their clothes are too tight or from fear they might get a run in their stocking or suffer some similar disaster.

Tibet's Marriages

Polyandry is practised in Tibet. Tibetan women have as many as five husbands. The husbands do all the housework. However, it appears to be a feast or a famine as regards husband in Tibet. One out of every three males in that country is in a monastery. So the beautiful women get five husbands and as polygamy is also practised most of the rest of the girls have to share one husband. Some of them have only a one-tenth share in a husband.

Husband's Pay Cheques

A British woman says she has been happily married 30 years and in all that time has never known what her husband's salary is. "He takes good care of me," says she. "That's good enough for me." Very interesting. However, the lady's situation is not unusual in Britain. It is said only one in 100 British wives knows the size of her husband's pay-check.

Fan Letters and Love Letters

Some great romances have started with fan letters. As for example, that of Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett. Browning wrote Miss Barrett a letter of appreciation of her poetry and in it he said: "I love your poetry, and I love you, too, Miss Barrett." Keep in mind this was the first letter Browning wrote to the poetess. He was a fast worker. A beautiful woman named Eva Hanska wrote fan letters to Balzac. The author fell in love with his admirer. But she was married. When her husband died Balzac proposed to her. He waited 17 years to marry her and she died five months after the wedding.

Afraid of the Dark

Do you remember a song titled "I'm Afraid to go Home in the Dark"? If you do, you really are a young old-timer. Anyway, British Gen. Carter de Wiart is considered one of the world's most courageous fighting men. He was wounded 11 times during his army career. He lost an eye fighting the Dervishes and a hand fighting the Germans in World War I. But he still kept on fighting and saw action in World War II. In his recently written autobiography Gen. de Wiart confesses he is afraid of the dark!

"We Did It"

In referring to victories of their fighters some fight managers use "we", as in "we knocked him out in three rounds". Whenever I hear a fight manager talk that way I am reminded of the fable of the ant and the elephant. This pair crossed a small bridge together. When they reached the other side the ant said: "We sure did shake that thing".

Painless Way

Hypnotism is being widely used in England for painless childbirth. Recently a British woman, on her doctor's advice, was hypnotized on 12 different occasions previous to an expected blessed event. She was told by the doctor, handling the hypnotism, that she would fall asleep just before her baby was born. Then one day she dozed off and five hours later awakened with her baby in her arms and her husband at her side congratulating her. The hypnotist was not present when the woman fell asleep. The new mother said she knew nothing of the birth and felt no pain whatsoever.

New Brand Of Automobile—Not For Highway Use

SOUTH BEND, IND.—There is a new brand of automobile seen around South Bend these days—a sleek custom-made job that goes all day on one tank of gas.

But don't get excited. It's not for you, unless you want a gift for a youngster under eight years old. The autos are strictly midgets, and not for highway use.

Anthony LaCava, local tool and die maker, built the first pint-sized vehicle for his four children. It was a neighborhood success and LaCava, to date, has built six others. He plans to go into mass production as soon as he obtains the necessary equipment.

The tiny cars measure 22 inches high, 34 inches wide and 72 inches long. They have adjustable seats, and can be driven by a tot or adult. LaCava manufactures all the parts himself, except the wheels and the engines, which range in size from one and one-half to two horse power. A special feature is a combination clutch and brake which starts the car when pushed down, and stops it when released.

TRY AND STOP ME!

By BENNETT CERF

A motorist stopped at a tiny crossroads gas station and when he wasn't served immediately, called out sarcastically, "Everybody in this one-horse burg suddenly drop dead?" Uncle Ezzy, rocking peacefully on the porch, took the cornucopia out of his mouth, and called back, "Tain't likely. You're the first buzzard we seen around her today."

Are You Grown Up?

Whatever your age, you aren't completely grown up if:

It makes you unhappy to see a friend get ahead or be able to buy things you can't afford.

You feel there is just one "crowd" in your town you want to belong to—and that if they accept you, you'll really amount to something.

You have to "get even" with anyone who slights you in any way.

You keep strict account of what you do for others—and expect them to do equally as much for you, resenting it when they don't.

You always have to have one friend you can count on to listen to all your troubles and boost your ego by telling you that you are in the right and whoever disagrees with you is in the wrong.

You are more concerned with the impression you make on others when you first meet them than in enjoying the chance to get acquainted with a new person.

You are miserable if you hear about a party to which a lot of your friends have been invited but to which you have not received an invitation.

If you do another person a favor you make quick work of seeing to it that all your friends know of your good deed.

It takes you a long time to make even a simple decision—and after you've made it you worry for fear it might have been better differently.

You get your feelings hurt easily—and when they're hurt you don't try to hide the fact, but want the other person to know how callous he has been.

World Happenings Briefly Told

A government source disclosed that a United Kingdom order for 60,000 cords of pulpwood worth $1,500,000 has recently been placed in Newfoundland.

Irish butter which was to have gone to Britain has been sold to Western Germany, which offered a better price, it was announced.

Hull's new 750-ton trawler, Princess Elizabeth, will have shower baths, clothes-drying rooms and all modern conveniences for her crew of 37. The sailors will also have "music-while-they-fish" relayed over loud-speakers.

Fifteen food hoarders were sent to prison at Prague, for terms of three months to eight years. Five women were included. They were accused of sabotaging the Czech rationing system "with intent to undermine the country's economy".

Greatest attractions at the British Food Fair were free food stands. One small boy ate 22 corned beef sandwiches in one sitting.

Some 80 immigrants came to Newfoundland during the first six months of 1950, official sources report. There were 56 from Europe and 24 from the United States.

Switzerland is reported using some of its scenic Alpine lakes as "deep-freezes", lowering food and other perishable supplies in sealed drums 40 feet or more below surface level.

The Saskatoon police department has acquired a drunkometer. The apparatus determines the amount of alcohol in the brain and will be used on persons charged with drunken driving.

New Blood Transfusion Solution Being Tried

WINNIPEG.—A new blood transfusion solution that can be stockpiled to meet disaster needs is being tried in Winnipeg.

The experiments are made under Dr. C. Harris, provincial medical director for the Canadian Red Cross, in co-operation with several Winnipeg doctors.

The solution, already used in large quantities in Sweden and Britain, has already proved highly successful in first aid and shock cases.

If the Winnipeg experiments work well, the solution will be manufactured and stored in Canada as a supplement to whole blood and dried blood plasma, for use in disasters.

Oddities In The News

Trains in South Australia have been held up by grasshoppers so thick on the track that engine wheels would not grip. One engineer said he had come across two swarms, one of which covered four square miles.

Heber Chapman, city clerk of Signal Hill, Calif., came upon this letter in his mail: "I am sorry, but when they took the dog census last year I forgot about a puppy my son has. I am enclosing $2 . . ." It seems the lady is still forgetful. The letter wasn't signed, and didn't contain $2.

A skunk in a washing machine causes just as much trouble as you would expect. Special police officer Joe Kupsch received a call from a householder at Sayreville, N.J., who said a skunk was wandering around her basement. Kupsch looked into the matter, and discovered the skunk in the washing machine, nestling on a pile of dirty clothes. Kupsch shot the skunk. Then he buried the clothes. He went home and tried to air out his own clothes. He thinks he'll have to bury them, too.

Barry Wood of Calgary was fined $45 for being drunk and punching a horse in the face.

The price of hair cuts in Hollywood, Fla., dropped to 35 cents as the town's three barbers waged an energetic price war. The day previous, haircuts cost $1. The barbers said they didn't know who started cutting prices first. Each said privately that the other two would have to end the battle. Motorists came from miles around to take advantage of the 35-cent hair cuts.

Tractor Climbs Atop of Car

MOOSE JAW, Sask.—Contractor T. A. Klemke's dirt-moving equipment was moving from Battleford to Smiley, Sask.

He drove in his shiny new car, found a night parking spot near, Coleville, then waited for the slow-moving tractor outfit to catch up.

When it did the tractor kept right on moving. It's lugs gripped Klemke's rear bumper and the tractor climbed atop the car, as far forward as the windshield.

Then tractor driver Herb Thiessen of Abbotsford, B.C., woke up. He backed off.

Neither Klemke nor Thiessen was hurt.

But that shiny new car is fit only for the scrap heap.

Midnight in the Afternoon

The above picture taken at St. Catharines, Ont., some 2,000 miles from Alberta, shows the dark overcast caused by smoke from the forest fires that raged in Alberta recently. The picture was taken as a time exposure at 2.30 p.m., showing the headlights of a car, making a streak of light down the street. Street lights were turned on at 2.10 p.m., the earliest in the city's history. Motor cars on the streets moved with lights full on, and lights were turned on in the homes.

INDEPENDENT CHULA—No one has to cater to Chula, Siamese-Persian cat owned by the family of Arthur Barber of Granite Falls, Minn. Chula is an extremely independent mousehound. She doesn't eat as other cats do, but picks the food up with her paws. She sleeps in a bed with the Barber children and insists on having the covers neatly drawn up under her chin. She makes exits and entrances on her own. Photo above shows you how Chula handles the problem of getting in. First she walks up the guard rail at the latch side of the door and on reaching the top she wraps a paw around the latch, presses and releases the catch. The door opens and from there on its a breeze. She merely springs from her perch into the house.

SOLUTION TO PARKING PROBLEM?—One of the attractions at the international automobile salon, which opened in Paris recently, is this French "car of 1950," which is designed to use a minimum of fuel and the least possible space. At top, the car is shown as ready for the road. Below, the wheels neatly folded so that it can be accommodated in a considerably smaller garage.—Central Press Canadian.

CELEBRATES RETIREMENT—Paul Hoffman, retiring administrator of the Economic Recovery Program, is shown as he prepared the launching of thousands of balloons by West Berlin youngsters as part of the activities of the West Berlin industry exposition. The balloons carry the exposition's message, and the name of the youngster releasing them. The one which travels the farthest wins an award for the owner. Theme of the exposition was the progress made under the Marshall Plan.

New Seed May Defeat Potato Blight

OTTAWA — Dominion department of agriculture scientists think they may have found the answer to one of the great plagues in nature—late blight of potatoes. The department says it is now ready to distribute certified seed of two highly resistant varieties known as Canso and Keswick.

Manitoba has been hard hit by this potato disease during the last decade, with heavy losses in some seasons, particularly in the Red river valley. The new varieties are reported to have done well in Manitoba field tests.

Canso and Keswick are being multiplied in every province except Alberta and Saskatchewan, where late blight has not been a threat.

Asked just how good the new varieties were, J. W. Scannel of the department's plant protection division here (and formerly stationed at Winnipeg, said they might mean as much to the potato industry as the development of Thatcher wheats meant to the western grain grower.

On the score of quality and yield, Mr. Scannel, one of the recognized potato authorities in the country, said that both Canso and Keswick in their field tests have compared favorably with Green Mountain in more areas. Green Mountain is regarded as the standard measurement, as Marquis for other wheats.

Officials of the department's horticulture division, responsible for the development, described it as "of vital economic importance" to the nation's tuber industry.

Hold First Bicycle Safety Lane In Canada

ESTEVAN, Sask.—Estevan school children turned out in force recently to attend what is believed to be the first bicycle safety lane held in Canada, and is known to be the first in Saskatchewan.

The lane, sponsored by three Estevan service organizations and the Saskatchewan highways traffic board with co-operation of town police and the local detachment of the R.C.M.P., proved to be a huge success as nearly 150 Estevan children put their bikes through five pre-arranged tests to qualify for a sticker which reads, "I pledge to ride safely."

The program, besides attempting to measure a degree of expertness of the rider, aimed to create a feeling on the part of the rider that there is more to bike riding than just "hopping on and pedalling." The five tests used in the lane involved balance, hand signalling, pedalling, braking, dismounting and control.

The tests enabled riders to acquire information and knowledge in safe riding practices, cycling rules and regulations.

MYSTERY!

Hundreds Of Birds Killed In Flight

ABERDEEN, WASH. — Hundreds of dead birds—most of them sparrows and wild canaries—littered Aberdeen streets, presenting a mystery for which residents have offered various solutions.

Residents connected the high bird mortality with the presence of unusually large flights of geese over the city.

Arthur K. Crews, state game protector, said the appearance of the low-flying, honking geese may have frightened the smaller birds into flights which ended with collisions against buildings and other objects.

Immigration From U.K. To Canada Drops

OTTAWA—Latest figures show that the flow of immigration from the United Kingdom to Canada is still running at barely half last year's rate. For the first eight months of this year, 9,000 people came to this country from Britain, compared with 17,120 in the same period of 1949.

The eight-month total from all sources is 49,220, as against 71,975 a year ago.

The sharp drop in British immigrants started in the fall of 1949, after devaluation of the pound sterling added to the difficulties of settlers who were already restricted as to the amount of capital they could take to Canada. The figure is $1,000 spread over four years.

There have been suggestions from London that the British government might ease these restrictions somewhat.

Late in June, Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, told the British house of commons that in future all emigrants to Canada who could make out a good case would be allowed to draw in the first year up to the whole four-year allotment. Each case would be determined on its merits, he said.

Since then, figures for two full months are available, but they show little change in the position. The number of British immigrants is still sharply below last year's.

The Canadian director of immigration, C. E. S. Smith, is now overseas, and he is understood to be looking into the whole question of stimulating immigration from the U.K. as well as from continental Europe. He will report to his minister, Hon. Walter Harris, on his return.

Smile Of The Week

John rushed around looking for his coat.

"What do you want it for, dear?" asked his wife.

"That fellow Smith across the road just telephoned to ask if I can lend him a corkscrew."

"Well, what do you want your coat for?" Surely there's no need to go out? You can send Mary with it."

John turned upon her more in sorrow than in anger. "My dear," he said, "your last remarks sum up the whole reason why women cannot lead armies, control nations, or take anything but a subordinate part in the affairs of the world."

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS A Vanished Hand

By JANE DALE

(After the death of her father on October 5th, 1950)

The sun is just as bright as it was before;

The sky as blue and the children's voices gay;

The busy days are filled with kindly deeds and music,

And yet—I miss the one who has just gone away.

The dawn greets me with its beauty as before;

The sun sets in splendor beyond the distant hill;

The moon and stars are now no less brilliant,

But, yet—I listen for a low voice which is still.

God's gracious works have not lost their fairness;

I see his love and I try to understand,

But yet,—amidst the beauty all about me

I'd dearly love to touch again that vanished hand.

SKUNK SHOWS THANKS

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—Three unidentified boys got a skunk out of a jam in the heart of the city. They bravely smashed a bottle in which the skunk's head had become wedged, as scores of people watched—from a safe distance.

The appreciative skunk returned the favor. He did nothing.

RECIPE HINTS

Macaroni salad flavored with olives, sharp cheese, crisp vegetables, and Russian dressing, is a treat to serve to a hungry family.

Macaroni Chef's Salad

Two and one quarter cups macaroni, 12 stuffed olives, sliced, ¼ lb. cheddar cheese cubed, 1 cup cubed bologna or other spicy cooked meat, 3 tomatoes, quartered, 1 cucumber, sliced, salad greens.

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender; drain, rinse with hot water; chill. Combine macaroni, olives, cheese, bologna, tomatoes and cucumber. Place in salad bowl with salad greens. Toss with Russian dressing. Yields 6 generous servings.

Set a bowl of salad dressing in centre of round chop plate in a cantelope-half. Pile sliced peaches, melon balls, orange segments and cherries around this and let each person "make" his or her own fruit salad.

Or, cut melon centres into cubes or balls and mold in your favorite gelatin recipe, garnishing with melon balls of a contrasting color. Any fruit-in-season may be substituted for melon, with equal enjoyment.

Pilots Have Trouble With Birds, Wind

BIRDS, ducks, lightning and wind ganged up on four big airline transports recently, but the high-flying pilots brought their planes and several score passengers through unscathed.

An American airlines pilot flew his four-engined DC-4 into a "flight of ducks" at about 10,000 feet over Iowa on a flight to the west coast from Chicago. He spattered so many duck bodies about and with such force that he decided to play safe and returned to Chicago for possible repairs. One engine nacelle was dented and the passengers had to transfer to another plane.

A second American Airlines pilot, flying a two-engined transport, from Rochester, N.Y., to Newark, N.J., ran into another flock of birds. He turned back to Buffalo, N.Y., for a quick checkup, found there was no damage, and took off again after a 25 minute delay.

At La Guardia Field, N.Y., a bolt of lightning within three feet of a trans world airline plane just about to take off with 13 passengers for a flight to Germany.

The bolt bowled over ground crew members, but nobody was hurt, although the lightning tore dozens of small holes in the landing apron.

Mechanics could find no damage to the four-engined constellation but officials ordered another plane to make the flight. The precautionary move delayed the flight six hours while another plane was readied.

And over Michigan, the cockpit door of an American Airlines DC-6 snapped off and dropped 11,000 feet to earth near Coldwater, Mich. The wind sucked several of the passengers' coats out of the plane. The plane, carrying 52 passengers and a crew of five, landed safely at Detroit, and passengers continued on to New York aboard another transport.

The airline offered $100 reward for the door, needed "to determine the cause of the accidents." The offer had schoolboys near Coldwater searching fields and other open areas.

Tells Secret Of Husband-Calling

DALLAS. — Mrs. Minnie E. Cope, Shreveport, La., who says she's "only 73 past" in years, won the women's fiddling and husband contests at the state fair of Texas.

Her secret of husband-calling—"I just imagine he's an hour late for supper and I have just spied him talking to a pretty woman neighbor."

"Then I'm in a mood for good husband-calling in a kind of panther moan."

The tip of the tongue is the most delicate organ of touch.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

REDHEADS :

They Both Had Guilty Consciences.

By Charlotte McCarthy

IF YOU didn't know them, you might have thought them brother and sister. Irma's hair was the exact shade of shiny, coppery red as that of her husband, Bart. And both had tempers to match.

They were driving to the Temple's party and the air was charged with anger.

"Can I help it if I have to work late?" Bart snapped, his face darkening.

"And can I help feeling that there should be at least one evening a week that I can depend on your not having to work late? It's gotten to the point where we're getting away from our friends. I'm afraid even to accept an invitation."

They didn't speak again until they reached the Temple's. The party was outside and Japanese lanterns twinkled in the dark. Together, but in some intangible way further apart than they had ever been in their seven years of married life, they walked around the house to the garden. Then, from within the summer house, the shrill voice of Polly Ainsley reached them clearly: "I guess you can't expect two redheads to get along together. It's my guess that the smash-up will come any day now." Her careless laugh held brittle amusement.

"But they seem so fond of each other," drawled somebody. "I was surprised there's a third party concerned."

As if by common consent, Bart and Irma retraced their steps, and didn't speak until they were back in the car.

"No one saw us come in," Bart said quietly. "When we get home, I'll phone and say we just got a wire to meet the train."

Her face scarlet, not daring to meet her husband's eyes, Irma walked ahead into the house and listened while he made the call. "I didn't feel much like a party anyway," he said to her gently. "I'm pretty tired to-night, think I'll just turn in." Not a word about the overheard conversation.

Irma tossed restlessly that night. How in the world had anyone found out about her seeing Paul. And it had all been so harmless, too. Just the odd telephone call, and a few lunches together. And only that because she had foolishly harbored this resentment against Bart's devotion to business.

How could she have subjected Bart to this humiliation? Bart who meant more to her than anything in the world? And he had been so considerate in not talking about it. Perhaps Bart was so very sure of her sincerity that he just took it for granted that the gossip was not true. She wouldn't be seeing Paul again.

Bart, too, was passing a sleepless night. Somehow, he had just fallen into the habit of taking Mary, the boss's secretary, to lunch, and the odd night when he had to work they had dined together. Usually, their talk was all business.

He had to admit, in all fairness, that her obvious interest in him had been flattering. He couldn't imagine who had seen them often enough to become suspicious, and it might be difficult to convince Irma that he wasn't in the least interested in the girl. Even though they had seemed to find a few things to disagree about lately, he was very much in love with Irma. Any thought of their marriage breaking up was intolerable.

The next morning dawned crystal clear, and for the first time in months, there was an old, treasured feeling of companionship at the breakfast table. Irma was a pretty good sport about this, Bart thought, and as soon as he went to work he'd explain to Mary that there had been unfavorable comments on their being seen together.

Around ten o'clock, Irma answered the telephone: "Darling," Polly's voice fluted over the wire. "I did want to see you last night to tell you all the scandal about the new people who moved into Darnon's bungalow. She's been seen all over with an old boy friend, and most of us think they'll be breaking up any day."

Irma murmured something unintelligible, and Polly continued. "Come to think of it, you haven't met them yet, but they both have red hair like you and Bart . . . though most of us think hers is dyed."
